Denise Lewis, PA-C Physicians Assistant

Denise Lewis has a B.S. in Biology from Virginia Commonwealth University, a B.S. and M.S. in Physician Assistant Studies from the University of Nebraska Medical Center and is currently working towards completing a Doctor of Medical Science program from Butler University. Denise has been practicing for 7 years.

After VCU, Denise worked as an Associate Scientist for Pharmaceutical Product Development Company before making the decision to commission into the U.S. Army as a Chemical Officer. Denise held several leadership roles prior to attending the Interservice Physician Assistant Program, where she graduated and became a certified PA. As a PA in the Army, Denise was trained in trauma medicine, urgent care and primary care to provide health services to fellow Soldiers in her unit. Denise completed two overseas tours to Korea and Kuwait. She spent over 10 years as an active-duty officer prior to transitioning to the Army reserves in 2019. She continues her service in the reserves at the current rank of Major. Upon her transition to the reserves, she began working in Family Medicine and Urgent Care facilities in the civilian sector. Denise also spent time coaching a recreational track team in Texas prior to making the transition back to the east coast to be closer to family.

In her spare time, she loves working out, spending time with family, traveling and taking care of her two rescue dogs, Rocko and Melo.
